Americans Begin Border Pullout

By Alvin Shuster
SAIGON, March 25 (NYT)—United States warplanes have again swept over North Vietnam, hitting surface-to-air missile sites, other anti-aircraft positions and related supply depots.

The latest air strikes, yet to be announced, appear to be part of a strategy designed to protect not only the air attacks on the Ho Chi Minh Trail complex, but also the American troops in support of the now-concluded South Vietnamese campaign against the Communist supply lines in Laos.

Reds Claim 'Total Victory' Over Allied Laos Campaign

TOKYO, March 25 (AP)—The Laotian Communists declared today that the South Vietnamese drive against the Ho Chi Minh Trail in southern Laos has ended with "complete defeat" and 15,400 U.S.-South Vietnamese troops were "put out of action."

Troops Said Being Sent to E. Pakistan

(Continued from Page 1) and carried away weapons and ammunition, the report said. A recent issue of Purbadesh, a pro-Awami League Bengali daily published in Dacca carried a large photograph of a woman's volunteer corps parading with rifles, the agency said. The article said that the rifles had been seized from an army.

Communications between East and West Pakistan are confined to army radio telephones and teletype, the report continued. Dacca radio has taken the tone of a communications outlet for a virtually independent nation, except that it continues to broadcast news bulletins put out by Radio Pakistan in Karachi, the Press Trust report said.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R., N.Y., one of the sharpest critics of the Nixon administration's Middle East initiative, reported after the meeting that "no settlement would be imposed" on Israel by the Rogers formula.

The U.S. position, as Secretary Rogers previously had explained it, was that Israel ought to withdraw to the 1967 boundary with its Arab neighbors, but only under a firm commitment, negotiated with the Arabs, that will give adequate security to Israel's continued existence as a state.

A reflection of the enemy activity around the American installations came in the announcement that five U.S. helicopters were shot down over South Vietnamese territory near Khe Sanh yesterday while supporting the withdrawing forces. This brought to 94 the number of helicopters lost in the Laotian operation.

Others were not included in the official count because they were recovered. In the announced crashes, 68 Americans have been killed and 79 wounded, with 23 listed as missing.

Small units of Vietnamese forces were still said to be deployed west of the Khe Sanh near the Laotian border in case North Vietnamese troops try to continue their sweep behind the retreat of Saigon's forces.

Laos Drive Said to Have Cost Saigon Almost 50% Casualties

SAIGON, March 25 (AP)—The 45-day drive into Laos cost the South Vietnamese nearly 10,000 casualties or almost 50 percent of the total force committed, highly placed Saigon military sources disclosed today.

Sources said 3,800 South Vietnamese troops were killed, 775 missing and 5,000 wounded. These sources, who have access to casualty reports, said the official communiqués from South Vietnamese headquarters being given to newsmen are lagging or are deliberately not reporting the true losses.

154 More Americans Killed The allied commands reported 5,750 Communists killed in the seven-day period that ended at midnight Saturday as compared with a revised Communist toll of 4,118 in the previous week. The U.S. command's report said this raised to 723,318 the number of Communists killed in Indochina since Jan. 1, 1961.

Hanoi Moving Heavy Guns To Positions Inside DMZ

WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—North Vietnam has begun moving long-range artillery into the Demilitarized Zone separating North and South Vietnam, it was learned yesterday.

From positions inside the DMZ, a six-mile-deep strip from which forces of both sides are barred under a tacit agreement the guns could shell military bases and roads about 15 miles inside South Vietnam, including the key American staging base at Khe Sanh and the main east-west highway, Route 9.

The move appears to represent a double gamble by Hanoi. First, the big guns may have been brought in for little or nothing. The base at Khe Sanh, which would be their major logical target, may be evacuated before the guns are ready to fire.

Second, the North Vietnamese have been warned on numerous occasions that Washington regards military activity inside the DMZ as a violation of the understanding reached in Paris in November, 1968, under which the United States agreed to halt its bombings of North Vietnam.

Sens. Smith, Humphrey Vote 'No' Nixon, Labor Miscalculated on SST

By John W. Finney WASHINGTON, March 25 (AP)—The White House miscalculated that it could sway the vote of a woman senator from Maine. And organized labor miscalculated the political allegiance of a former Democratic presidential candidate.

Between the two, these miscalculations contributed to the Nixon administration's defeat in the Senate on the supersonic transport project. Two weeks ago, according to uncommitted votes against the project were cast by Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R., Maine, and Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D., Minn.

President Nixon, who lobbied intensively among Republicans for the SST, sent a letter yesterday informing Mrs. Smith that his administration had reversed the decision, made by the Johnson administration, to close the Portsmouth Naval Shipyard near Kittery, Maine. The decision to keep the yard open was reversed two weeks ago, according to congressional sources.

Letter Made Public Mrs. Smith made the letter public. Then she once again voted, in her almost inaudible way, against the SST. For Sen. Humphrey, as he said later to a reporter, it was a "wretched decision" in his political career, loyalties and thinking.

As one Senate colleague summed up Sen. Humphrey's dilemma, "Hubert had to choose whether to go with the bird-watcher or the hardhat, and he decided to assume the protective coloration of all the other potential Democratic candidates."

With the exception of Sen. Birch Bayh of Indiana, who was snowbound in Colorado and missed the vote, all the other Democratic senators mentioned as possible Democratic candidates voted against the SST.

On his first important vote since returning to the Senate, Sen. Humphrey found himself torn between political loyalties of the past and political ambitions for the future. From one side, he was being urged to vote for the SST by leaders of organized labor, such as George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO, and Floyd E. Smith, president of the International Association of Machinists.

But from the other side, Sen. Humphrey was being implored by his younger colleagues, such as Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota, and by his liberal advisers, such as Walter J. Heller, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers in the Kennedy administration, to vote against the SST.

His basic message was that the SST had become a symbolic issue in the struggle over new priorities and directions for the nation, with the implication that, if Sen. Humphrey continued to court presidential ambitions, he should ride with the new political tide.

Sen. Humphrey, who acknowledged that his political antennae were attuned to the sentiments of younger voters, said that he eventually decided against the SST because it was "the wrong money in the wrong place at the wrong time."

The interplay of personalities in the Senate also influenced the outcome, as in the surprise and crucial switch of Sen. Clinton P. Anderson, D., N.M., to the SST opposition. Later, Sen. Anderson told reporters that he had voted against the SST this year in response to letters and telegrams from his constituents, which were running about 10-to-1 against the project.

Mr. Mitchell, Chase Manhattan's resident expert on aerospace and SST matters, said that there was no proof that the American plane would have a market and this militated against the banks taking a flyer in financing it. The plane's developers, he observed, had "enough wisdom" not to have sought commercial bank financing in the first place.

Boeing Co. Workers in Seattle Waiting Stoically for Layoff

By Wallace Turner SEATTLE, March 25 (AP)—The mockup of the SST-308 test long, 53 feet high—dominates the Boeing plant here. With its movable nose in a dropped position, it looks a little like a dejected sea monster.

The men stood in little groups, their faces gray with the impact of the news that the Senate had voted not to extend funding on the development of the SST beyond next Wednesday.

That vote will cost about 7,000 persons their jobs, L.P. McKeel, a Boeing Co. vice-president, announced at a news conference which was overheard by the employees.

Moreover, the men who clustered around the SST mockup yesterday afternoon had gone as far as they can expect to go in the process of using their seniority to bump shorter-term employees and continue on the Boeing payroll. Most of the men on the SST crew have over more than 20 years' seniority.

Ed Clayton, 43, a mechanic now, was a supervisor a year ago, with a crew of about 25 working under him. The crew's job was to attach the wings to Boeing 737s, but production was cut-back and Mr. Clayton had to bump others to get his mechanic's job.

Mr. Clayton has spent 23 years with Boeing. He worked on the Stratocruiser and on the first 707. He is married, and has two children. He has no other job lined up or in sight. The downturn spiral of Boeing's fortunes has cut his income by about $5,800 in 1970 from 1969 as he dropped to lower-paying jobs in order to keep working. Beyond a partition, Vincent Tricola, a 20-year Boeing man, worked over a bench, carving from aluminum a tool that would hold pieces of titanium while they were welded into a strip that would become a part of a leading edge of a wing.

He has six children, aged 7 to 16. Unemployment is a bitter prospect for him. "They got a billion dollars in it already," Mr. Tricola said, "why they want to throw it out the door? I don't care if it's an old truck or what it is, why throw it away?"

But he would make no argument that the SST needed to be built as a patriotic gesture or to bolster the economy. "We need it like a hole in the head," he said. "People don't need it. Why they need to get somewhere faster than they already can?"

He thought about the economic future for himself and his family. "Maybe I can go on the food stamps," he said, signaling with his voice and eyes that this was meant to be ironic. "I hear that's not so bad."

While only about 4,500 Boeing employees work on the SST, about 2,500 in other departments will be laid off because of the loss of the SST project. This, plus other cut-arising from the decline in military and commercial work by the company means that by the end of this year Boeing will employ perhaps 29,000 men. E.E. Hurst, a Boeing vice-president and general manager of the SST Division, said that the termination notice from the government was expected today and that the work force would be disbanded immediately.

"We have received no information that additional funding may be available," Mr. Hurst said. Yesterday's events brought to an end the era of high expectation for Boeing employees that began in 1966 when the company's designs for a supersonic transport won in competition with other airline manufacturers.

Japanese Firm Queries U.S. On Purchase of SST Assets

By Richard Witkin NEW YORK, March 25 (NYT)—A large Japanese trading company has been sounding U.S. officials for the last week on buying the enormous assets of the supersonic transport program should Congress, as it did yesterday, cut off funds for the project.

The firm, the Ataka Trading Co., is said to have talked about assuming the hundreds of millions of dollars worth of patents, blueprints and already completed aircraft parts for about ten cents on the dollar.

Meanwhile, it was learned that T. A. Wilson, president of the Boeing Co., which was to have built the supersonic airliner, flew to Tokyo yesterday. However, he said that he had had no offer, no discussion, no contact at all with Japanese companies.

He said that he was on his way to London by way of Moscow and had stopped in Tokyo to pay courtesy calls on Boeing customers in Japan.

The first feelers by Ataka were put out about a week ago, in phone calls from Japan to Washington. A follow-up cable arrived at the State Department yesterday morning, more than 48 hours before the 51-to-46 Senate vote halting funds for the SST.

In the cable, Ataka said that it was "extremely interested" in the SST and asked what would have to be done: if a trade mission wanted to look into the matter further.

The key to calculations about continuing the SST program, whether by Japanese or U.S. companies was the question of what price tag the federal government specifically the Department of Transportation would put on its SST assets.

Some experts were far from sure whether the government would or could sell its assets for ten cents on the dollar. But others saw no reason why not, noting how surplus military equipment has traditionally been sold for a pittance in the liquidation of a war.

Question of Legality As to whether the government could legally sell the SST assets, one well-placed official said: "Why not? The government could sell the Smithsonian if it wanted to."

The telegram from Ataka Co. to the State Department was sent personally to Bertrand Rein, assistant secretary for transport-

Warning Sign of Technology

In the tangle of motives that inspired a majority of the Senate to join the House in cutting off money for the supersonic transport plane, economics and priorities in allotting government funds were apparently decisive.

There are obvious intrusions on the environment. Control of demand, or clear understanding of just what kinds of energy do most harm to humans and the land they live in, the air they breathe, have become secondary considerations.

What Is The FBI Up To?

With due deliberation and with considerable regard for the attorney general's objections, The Washington Post (and the IHT of March 25) published the substance of some FBI records—stolen by unknown persons from the FBI's office in Media, Pa., and sent to The Washington Post anonymously by mail.

NEW YORK—Colonel G.T. Demison, speaking last evening at a public banquet at Ottawa, caused a great deal of enthusiasm by a bellicose speech on the subject of the relations between Canada and the United States.

PARIS.—It was learned yesterday from a reliable source that Georges Carpentier and Descamps, his manager, will sail for America early in May to prepare for the championship fight against Jack Dempsey, which is scheduled by Tex Rickard to be held early in July.

On the plus side is the official view that the operation disrupted the Ho Chi Minh Trail network, if only temporarily, destroyed "significant" amounts of supplies, killed an estimated 13,000 Communists, damaged key supply arteries and left them mined.

On the minus side, the view is that the operation underscored weaknesses in South Vietnam's army and its virtually total dependence on American planes and

Community Ministers Agree On Higher Farm Goods Prices

Under the reform program, farmers between the ages of 55 and 65 who agree to abandon their farms will be given special pensions. Those who remain will be given investment grants and guaranteed loans so long as they agree to modernize their holdings in conformity with the common guidelines.

France Wants Britain to Cut Its Balances

By James Goldborough PARIS, March 25.—France wants Britain to reduce its sterling balances during the first years of Common Market membership, Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann said today.

Reforming measures have been blocked by the market's farming lobby, a well-organized pressure group with political importance in the six member nations far outweighing its numerical importance. About 13 percent of the market's total active population is engaged in agriculture.

But today's decision indicates that, from now on, the pressure will be on the farmers to modernize, or else remain the poor cousins of industrial workers. These pressures will increase if the market is enlarged to include Britain, a country with a very small, but relatively efficient, farming population.

U.S. High Court To Review Issue In Hartke Vote

WASHINGTON, March 25 (WP).—The Supreme Court has agreed to consider whether a federal court acted properly when it blocked the state-ordered recount of the election in which Sen. Vance Hartke narrowly beat Rep. Richard L. Roudsbush last fall.

Both contestants said they were glad the high court would settle the dispute. Sen. Hartke, a Democrat, took the oath for his third term Jan. 21 "without prejudice" to the outcome of the court case.

Woman Aims Plan to Kidnap Ex-Nazis to Trial in France

PARIS, March 25 (UPI).—Beate Klarsfeld, who once publicly slapped the face of Kurt Kliesinger when he was chancellor of West Germany, said today that she plans to kidnap alleged German war criminals and deliver them for trial in France.

Beate Klarsfeld

Miss Klarsfeld, 31, claimed credit for Monday's attempted kidnap of former Nazi officer Kurt Lischka in Cologne. Miss Klarsfeld said that was the first move against "more than 300 large-scale criminals that the German police cannot protect."

Klarsfeld said her action now against alleged war criminals in Germany is justified by the "total defaulting or indulgence" of West German justice "toward a thousand West German war criminals condemned in France in their absence and who live openly in West Germany in defiance of a healthy notion of justice."

The New 'East Lynne'—'Love Story'

PARIS, March 25.—'Love Story' (at the Normandie, the Publicis Matignon and the Bouli Mich in English) is making millions of Americans cry, a fact that is causing millions of other Americans to double up with laughter.

ing jag. It depends, of course, who "one" is. Shakespeare had many beautiful things to say of Juliet, dead at 14, and what of Savage Land's night of memories and sighs consecrated to Rose Aylmer? What of the statement that emerges from a reading of Anne Frank's diary. And what of Webster's "Cover her face, mine eyes are dazzled; she died young?"

The heroine is deserving of all the romanticizing that is possible. This has been attempted by showing her as a sensitive music lover, but her lyric delineation is rudely contradicted by her constant use of an explosive more suited to a streetwalker insulted by a sailor.

Covent Garden's New 'Così'—'Intimate Theater Gem'

Alphonse Daudet is an author inappreciably neglected by the cinema. Aside from Pagnol's "Letters From My Mill," "Seas-rom's 'Confessions of a Queen,' based on "Les Rois en Exil," in the silent days, and the American version of "Sapho," known as "Inspiration," with Greta Garbo, none of his novels has yet gone before the cameras, though their materials would be ideally suited to the screen.

Entertainment in New York

NEW YORK, March 25.—This is how The New York Times critics rated new movies: "Making It," the story of a 17-year-old high-school student, written by Peter Barf and directed by John Erman (his first theatrical feature), starring Kristoffer Tabori, a successful child actor on the New York stage a few years ago, "happily avoids a lot of the more hysterical clichés of most under-20 movies," reports Vincent Canby.

Table showing financial highlights for 1970, 1969, and 1968, including capital, reserves, and profit figures.

Extracts from the annual statement to shareholders by the Chairman, Mr. A. D. Chesterfield, C.B.E.

The results for the year were very much in line with the forecast made in September when our Interim Report was published. During a year in which operating expenses rose substantially it is gratifying that our profits were only marginally lower than the all-time record achieved in 1969.

Whilst our trading experience has continued to be good, we have to recognise the dangers inherent in the present economic situation. It is against this background that the Board decided to continue their very prudent policy regarding distribution of profits and transfers to Reserves, and have recommended a final dividend of 8 1/2% making 12% for the year, the same total as for 1969.

CRAZY SUNDAYS F. Scott Fitzgerald in Hollywood

By Aaron Latham. Viking, 308 pp. $7.95

Reviewed by Walter Clemons

AARON LATHAM'S engagingly titled account of Scott Fitzgerald's involvement with Hollywood covers not only his final years there but also a couple of earlier stops earlier (including his screen test as a leading man in the twenties and his famous disgrace at Sunday tea with the Irving Thalbergs in the early thirties).

When Fitzgerald turned up in Hollywood in 1927 to write scripts for M-G-M, he was 41 years old, dreaming of "all the money and glory" beyond the impregnable walls that would pay Zelda's hospital expenses, provide his daughter's schooling and restore his lost fame.

In the writers' building at Metro, he worked on "A Yank at Oxford," "Three Comrades," "Infidelity" (a hopeful title-change to "Fidelity" failed to appease the Hays Office and the film was never made), "The Women" and "Madame Curie." Sad hordes abound. He was assigned a collaborator on "Three Comrades"

Observer Telephonectomy

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON—If you are the parent of a 13-year-old child or even an 18-year-old brute with bleeps like Max Baer, you have doubtless heard your telephone keeps ringing. "That is the 200th time it has rung today," you have cried aloud to an indifferent heaven. "What can they possibly have to talk about?" To answer this question scientifically, the only way a vital American answers a question of this sort, or almost any other sort for that matter, an 18-year-old named Mark was introduced into a house with a telephone, and the conversation was recorded. This is what they have to talk about: Mark called Jimmy to say he was in a house with a telephone and was ready to take calls. A few minutes later Mark received a call from Theodore, who inquired how Mark was feeling. Mark said he was feeling "not too bad." He also commented on local meteorological conditions, a recorded guitar performance and the condition of the human race. This last, he said, seemed less than altogether satisfactory. Theodore responded in a sympathetic vein, and then broke off the conversation, explaining that he had to call "a chick named Ulaume." who was "sucha drag she's only getting 50 to 60 phone calls a day." Mark volunteered to give Ulaume a few calls.

The Artist Who Is Inventing Himself

By Jules B. Farber

AMSTERDAM—Contemporary icons, made from the flossam of Amsterdam harbor, are on view in the company of centuries-old Russian icons, at the Huisgeest & Jaski gallery until April 30. The Russian artists were anonymous, but the contemporary icon maker, though largely the product of his own imagination, is known as Victor Four, born 42 years ago in New York City of a Greek mother and German father and baptized Walter Gluck. He first exchanged the name Walter for Karl, later became Victor Fourteen and still later shortened that to Victor Four. He is working toward a monk-like existence and if he succeeds he has a name ready for himself. It will be Sebastian. The artist became Victor Four in 1964 when he settled on an 80-year-old, 160-ton freighter on the Amstel River. "Numbers have always been important to me—I'm number 14—so I made up the name of Victor Fourteen," he said. But it sounded too much like the Sun King so it shortened it to Four. En route to becoming an icon maker, Four was a seaman and shipped around the world several times, lived in a Buddhist temple in Tokyo, handed out CARP powdered milk in Korea, courted Millie Perkins and helped her to Hollywood with photographs he took for Paris Match and drove around Europe for a few years in a battered truck. "I must have been fired from about 40 jobs on my way to Amsterdam," he said. Still wearing the name of Karl Gluck when, after several visits, he decided to stay in Amsterdam, he found work as an advertising photographer, but the assassination of John F. Kennedy in 1963 changed him, made him want to express despair. He began by painting eight battered hatch covers with graphic epitaphs, using stencils for lettering and adding grim shapes. Then, working with weathered bits of old ships, Four scratched, sculpted and etched crude images as a comment on the Harlem riots of 1964. Later he satirized Henry Miller's "Tropic of Cancer" and scorned society with an over-sized half-dollar which bears the motto: "In God We Trust Sometimes." Since that period, outside approval has interested Four very little. In lean periods his diet consists of oatmeal—eaten with a Mickey Mouse spoon. "An artist has to make and then protect what he has made, and, far behind other considerations, he has to let others see it. If you're sure of what you're doing, you go on. I give myself all the medals.

PEOPLE: Mao Tse-tung on Best-Dressed List

Chairman Mao

British rock star Mick Jagger and Chinese leader Mao Tse-tung are included in a list of the world's best-dressed men, compiled for the magazine Tailor and Cutter. The list, due to be published today, also included Prince Charles' father, Teddy Watson, but not the prince himself, whose clothing was criticized recently by Karl Dallas, who compiled the list. There were 100 people on the list, including: pop singers Tom Jones and Engelbert Humperdinck, actors Warren Beatty and Paul Fonda, and Malcolm Leigh, director of "Games Lovers Play," one of the most successful films of the year. Among the others were Noel Coward, soccer star George Best and Prince William of Gloucester. French designers Yves Saint-Laurent and Pierre Cardin also claimed their places, alongside French actor Alain Delon and Italian journalist Michelangelo Testa. Actor Beatty said he twisted his ankle painfully twice Wednesday—once when he stumbled in front of an oncoming locomotive and again when a thief entered his unlocked hotel room in Hamburg. "It was not a good night," Beatty said. The first accident occurred during the filming of a scene for the motion picture at Hamburg's main station. The scene called for him to be chased across tracks in front of a moving locomotive. "I just went down a little bit, but somehow when the thing was bearing down on me, I got up very quickly," he said with a laugh. "Locomotives look particularly huge at that angle." He was treated at a first aid clinic and then returned to his hotel to rest up his taped ankle. Beatty said he left the door to his hotel suite open so that he would not have to drag himself to unlock the door when breakfast came the next morning. "A thief came into my suite, and walked into the bedroom while I was asleep. I jumped out of bed six feet in a horizontal position, and when I came down, I twisted my ankle again. He ran off." A member of the hotel staff confirmed that Beatty had reported the incident, but said it might only have been someone who wandered into the room by mistake. Hamburg police said they had not received a complaint from the hotel. Beatty thinks he can resume filming in another two days. Seattle Paul McCartney flew into London from the New York States yesterday, and said he would not mind if the group reformed without him. He was commenting on reports that John Lennon, George Harrison and Ringo Starr plan to tackle the charts again with guitarist Klaus Voormann in his place. Asked whether he had been upset by criticism at the London high court hearing of the group's financial troubles, Paul replied: "That's the way of the world; it didn't upset me. And anyway, I make a point not to read the newspapers." He said he planned to spend a few days in the country before traveling to France to record a new album. "There are two artists in the record," he noted. "Linda and Paul McCartney." His American wife, the former Linda Eastman, who accompanied him, said the couple hoped to hide out in a "small inn somewhere in the country." Would they see the other Beatles? "I think it is highly unlikely," laughed Paul. Actress Jane Birkin is expecting a baby and plans to get married, the London Daily Mirror said yesterday. She told the Mirror the father is 42-year-old French singer Serge Gainsbourg, with whom she made the much-banned record "Je t'aime." The Mirror said the marriage will follow the baby's expected July birth. Miss Birkin, 34, has a 4-year-old daughter by her first marriage, to composer John Barry. Tricia Nixon, after some days of indecision, has settled on June 12 as the day for her wedding to Edward Finch Cox.
